

REFERRAL SERVICES

North Central Florida attracts lots of people from all over the United States because of the University of Florida and Shands Hospital. Attracting these prospective buyers to your property is an important component in achieving the best results in the sale of your home. To attract prospective buyers from across the United States, I have developed and cultivated a network of local and national buyers and real estate professionals.

I'm a member of the Certified Residential Specialist national referral networks that share information on an ongoing basis.

When you list your home with me, you have the added benefit of my local and national contact and referral base that attracts qualified buyers and real estate professionals from across the nation to your property.
